

Buckle up for the hazards of life's highway!

Would you take your family on a holiday trip in a car without seatbelts – or let your family travel without 'buckling up'?

If your answer is yes, you clearly have confidence that the weather, road conditions, fatigue, the 'other driver' and plain good fortune will not turn against you, or perhaps that your family and your car are uncrushable.

If you answer no, you are showing a keen awareness that the future is difficult to predict and may be hazardous – on and off the road!

Every day, many Australians set out off for their next destination in the journey of life without adequate safety provisions. They are oblivious to the readily available and affordable safety devices which can protect them and their families if the journey is unexpectedly interrupted.

Australian financial institutions have developed a range of these safety devices to help families cope with traumatic change and make family life more secure. The common, generic name for these products are insurance policies.

There are different types of insurance policies available to protect you and your family against the hazards you may encounter along life's highway. There are policies to help you restructure your life if you are critically injured or incapacitated through accident or one of the 'dreaded diseases' that threaten us. There are also policies to help you back on your feet if you are unable to work for an extended period and policies to help your family get on with life if you die.
